Pride

Robert Ellis

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

You're too damn proud to say you were wrong
You're screaming so loud
Making sure everyone hears what I've done
One of these days after everyone's gone
You'll see that it was better
Just for once, for you to be wrongYou're just a kid inside a grown 'up body
And you don't have to apologize to nobody
We'll just keep earning every bridge that you walk across
No matter what it costs
No matter who you've lostYou're blaming on the rain
You're blaming on everybody else
You're blaming on the way grew up
You're blaming on everyone
But yourself, why you're so alone?
Why you turn down the way you do?
Honey,you're full grown
But you act just like a kid
Inside a grown-up body
And you don't have to say sorry to nobody
We're just burning every bridge you come across
No matter what it costs
Cause your pride is the only'You're just a kid inside a grown 'up body
And you don't have to apologize to nobody
We'll just keep burning every bridge that you walk across
No matter what it costs
No matter who you've lost
So long it ain't your folk
Honey, tell me, is it worth it all?

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/