Don't Need A Thing

We Are The Fury

outside of a level head with the glasses drying at the edge of my bed i just need some time alone for awhile locked up in an empty tomb with your photographs spread on the floor of my room reminding me i once knew how to smileall that i need is, all i really need is, all that i need is air all that i need is, all i really need is, everything but you're not thereso i don't need a thing to remind me so i don't need a thing to remind me no i don't need a thing to make the world think that i don't need a thing at allshe left with a broken stare and her perfume still stale in my hair it's like a movie pressing rewind sometimes i would like to go back but i find it so hard to breathe the past 'cause i know that we are way past our primeall that i need is, all i really need is, all that i need is air all that i need is, all i really need is, everything but you're not thereno i don't need a thing to remind me no i don't need a thing to remind me no i don't need a thing to make the world think that i don't need a thing at allbruised myself but my skin isn't scuffed but i tricked myself; i'm soldier my eyes see light but the bunkers too rough to crawl back to love and out of this holeno i don't need a thing to remind me no i don't need a thing... no i don't need a thing to make the world think no, i don't need a thing at all...
