

Everybody Loves a Happy Ending

Tears for Fears

Tow the line
Tow the line Wake up, your time is nearly over
No more the supernova
No action guaranteed Wake up you've had an operation
Ideals above your station
Too much reality Think about the wasted time spending
Watching mother nature's knees bending
Everybody loves a happy ending Wake up you're on your own agenda
Give up the great pretender
With baby eyes of green Wake up you're holding on to nothing
You know you're only bluffing
As dead as autumn leaves Think about the wasted time spending
Watching mother nature's knees bending
Everybody loves a happy ending Don't you just love a happy ending?
Oh yeah well so do I
And all your love will shine on everyone The darkness of the day a curse in every way
You try to see the light
But you don't know why, don't know why They tell you on the phone
To give your God a bone
And grow a set of wings like a butterfly The guardian at the gate
Reminds you that you're late
You try to take your time
But you tow the line, tow the line To children of the world and daddy's little girl
The grass is always green on the other side
So stay and breathe new life Wake up, wake up, wake up Wake up, wake up
Everything is moving faster than you think
Your pen is running out of ink
Fill up your bath and kitchen sink
They're really kickin' up a stink You never found the missing link
You should be happy in the pink
You're in demand but out of sync
A nod is as good as a wink
Once more my dear friends to the brink All your love will shine on everyone
