

Blue Skies

Diana DeGarmo

I wake up every morning
To another crazy day I have to face
And when I'm losing my direction
You're the one who points me in the right way You always know when I'm about to fall
It's like you're standing there when I hit that wall
'Cause of you my eyes are open
And instead of always hoping I have faith today So thank you for blue skies
When my head is down you remind me to look up
And thank you for all those times
You believed when others couldn't see
Ohh, without you where would I be? I should tell you in the letter
All the things that I have never said
'Cause when you're right in front of me
Nothing ever comes out how I plan Like how the heart in you goes on for miles
And when it passes through me, I come alive
And if I ever learned a lesson, it's in the first and lasting impression
Of the way you got to me So thank you for blue skies
When my head is down you remind me to look up
And thank you for all those times
You believed when others couldn't see
Ohh, without you where would I be? Where would I be? I wake up every morning
To another crazy day I have to face, hey Thank you for blue skies
When my head is down you remind me to look up
And thank you for all those times
You believed when others couldn't see
Ohh, without you where would I be? Ohh, thank you, thank you, thank you Ohh, without you where would I be?
