

Sound of Emotion (feat. Ron Boustead & Dave Koz)

Gregg Karukas

There's a man with a saxophone in the tunnel to the Hollywood Bowl, and I've heard his song before.
Melodies sweet and low reaches inside my soul
stop to hear him play one more.

And I don't care if it makes me late. I have the feeling it's worth the wait.
This man is saying something.
It's the story of love and pain, harsh words, and the blinding rain
Every note has the power to move, the power to heal.

And I can feel the Sound of Emotion
carry me away,
remembering someone
from another time and place.
I hear the Sound of Emotion,
it seems to be saying "I love you".
I can almost hear him call her name

Another dollar inside his case; wipe the teardrops from my face and Blend into the crowd
Find my way to the 14th row; settle back to watch the show.
Tonight, it seems too loud
In a moment I'm on my feet to hear the music underneath the street, where someone is saying something.

And I can let the -
Sound of Emotion
carry me away,
remembering someone
from another time and place
I hear the Sound of Emotion,
It seems to be saying "I love you."
I can almost hear him call your name.

(instrumental interlude)

And when he plays opens up a place in my heart
That I thought I could forget

But it isn't over yet.

I still hear the Sound of Emotion carry me away,

I can feel it

(Sound of Emotion)

I can almost hear him call your name

(Sound of Emotion)

It seems to be saying I love you, love you, love you

I hear the

(Sound of Emotion)

And everywhere I go I think of you.

Ohhhh ohhh ohhh ohhhh

(Sound of Emotion)

Reaches to my soul.

(Sound of Emotion)

Yeah
