In the City

Xymox

Mornings, when I wake too early
There's a dead light in the room
Rain is falling throughThe dark and the moon
The waking hour appears pretty soon
Everyone is sleeping though
I lie in a curtained roomSomewhere in a city
Holding so many names
Somehow in the distance
I've gone to groundSomewhere in a city
Somewhere between the crowd
Somehow in the distance
I've gone to groundOnly the shadow remains
Only the shadow of doubt
Three years of memories
Memories without a sightThe end of another year
How will I survive?
How suddenly fear begins
In a bedroom on the floorSomewhere in a city
Holding so many names
Somewhere in the crowd
Somewhere in the distanceSomewhere in a city
Holding so many names
Somehow in a city
I've gone to groundThe light breaks, slowly forward
Across my bedroom wall
Until it defines me somehow
In shadow of doubtIt finds my fugitive life
It's blurred, blurred with dust
Only Heaven collides
When I look aboveSomewhere in a city
Holding so many names
Somehow in the distance
I've gone to groundSomewhere in a city
Somewhere between the crowd
Somehow in the distance
I've gone to groundSomewhere in a city
Somewhere between the crowd
Somehow in the distance
I've gone to ground
