

Life's Little Recipe

Ian Thompson

Oh you send all your loving to the girl of your dreams only to find she ain't all that she seems lost in an ocean full of sympathetic beer I tried to make it all disappear
But oh no what have I done
I've got my head so far up I can't see the sun
an old fossil said to me
I know it's hard but that's part of life's little recipe
They are safe in the knowledge of whoever they are but things they really want to say wont get them very far politically correct yes they play it so well they all know the rules and no one's going to tell They don't know what they've done they've got there heads so far up they can't see the sun that old fossil says to me
I know it's hard but that's part of life's little recipe
Oh I spend most my time doing things I despise someday they say you will finally get wise living in a world of materialistic minds I long for yesterdays beautiful times
I don't know where they've gone
I've got my head so far up I can't see the sun
that old legend says to me
I know it's hard but that's part of life's little recipe
yeau look at me call me square I don't care this is how I want to be you that's what he said to me yes it's true everybody got there own little recipe

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>