

Lucky (Live Version 2012)

Fish

He met the world as a Dalkeith boy
Raised from a shaft at Monktonhall
In a well oiled cage that locked away his dreamsAn '85 veteran face from the gallery
A ghost from the civil war in the family
He stood his ground on the picket line
'Til all that he was left with were his father's coughFrom his mother's eyes
That would hold a tear for the very first time
When the government, they took his job awayNow fist in hand you stand in line
Declare his name and mark his time
To some the only proof that they're aliveHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been anybody
But he was born luckyHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been anybody
But he was born lucky, luckyHe made his first down payment
On a sharp Italian suit
He sewed razor blades into the lapelsSee him sweating on the dance floor
Cool dust oozing out of every pore
A hard man with a hard life
That's a story that he'll tell youDown at Easter Road till his throat is raw
On a Saturday, he knows the score
Till the whistle blows and the tempers
With their colors fade awayHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been anybody
But he was born luckyHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been anybody
But he was born lucky, luckyOn the helipads at Aberdeen
By the platforms, drilling oil rich seas
Where the trawlers are getting fewer every yearBy the furnaces at Ravenscraig
By the padlocks holding John Brown's gates
In the desert, in the fields of South ArmaghWhere the poppies grow behind the Hampden roar
Behind the drums in Genoa
On the deck that rides a South Atlantic swellBorn to fight out of the tightest corner
You can bet on him with the odds against you
They'll not put him down no matter how they tryOh, he could have been you
He could have been me

He could have been anybody
But he was born luckyHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been anybody
But he was born luckyHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been anybody
But he was born luckyHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been anybody
But he was born luckyHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been anybody
But he was born luckyHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been, he could have been
He could have been lucky
He could have been lucky, luckyHe could have been you
He could have been me
He could have been lucky
He could have been lucky

Songwriters

DICK, DEREK WILLIAM/BOULT, ROBIN/SIMMONDS, MICKEYPublished by Lyrics Â© EMI Music Publishing, Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC

Lyrics provided by
<https://damlyrics.com/>