Choices

Auryn

You know I never really meant to give you up
I just wasnâ€™t prepared to breathe in you life
To me it never really occurred that I would be sober
That I would be so hurt and feel you missed...

The color of your hair.. a shadow always there.. the color of your eyes.. forever we disguised that blood was on our hands and blood was on her thighs the sound of a voice.., I had to make a choice...

You know I never really bent enough to learn What sacrifice meant itâ€™s a stone unturned to me it never really occurred that I would get older and Iâ€™d be looking over a life like this.., to see

CHORUS
SOLO
CHORUS

What color was your hair? Itâ€™s a question I canâ€™t bare.
What color would your eyes have been if forever we had shined in them
But blood was on our hands and blood was on her thighs
the sound of your voice
I had to make a choice...

You know I never really meant to give you up
I just wasnâ€™t prepared to breathe in you life...

Lyrics submitted by Ward Bell.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/