Left Behind

Lou Doillon

Here struck between this heaven blue
This emerald green
Life takes on so easy
And here our eyes shine bright
And our smiles are free
And this golden light
It fits like a crownAnd one could almost forget
That somewhere over there
There's the grey city lights
The grey city heights
We've left behindThere, in this withered town
Struck between
This ceiling and the ground
Days bleed so listlessly
And all faces down
One by one we drag
Our heavy loads aroundAnd one could almost forget
That somewhere over there
There's the heaven blue skies
The ruby red sunrise
We've left behind
