Once In a Blue Moon

Earl Thomas Conley

Nine times out of ten, she's right and I am wrong
When I won't give in, she just goes along
Standing by my side, sitting home alone
I'll never know what keeps her hanging on
When anybody else would be long goneBut once in a blue moon, I'll do something right
And once in a blue moon, I'll make her feel so fine
I can make her laugh, and make her cry
She hates the way she loves me sometimes
But once in a blue moon, I'll do something rightShe's starving for affection, so hungry for loves touch
But she only hears, I love you", when we're making love
Lord, I'll always wonder why she loves me so much
And the best I'll ever do won't be enough
So I'll just thank my lucky stars aboveBut once in a blue moon, I'll do something right
And once in a blue moon, I'll make her feel so fine
'Cause I can make her laugh, oh, and make her cry
She hates the way she loves me sometimes
Once in a blue moon, once in a blue moon
Every once in a blue moon, I'll do something right
Once in a blue moon
