Curse

God Module

It's dark Outside we're alone in this room
Hiding from ourselves pretending were fine
Trying to explain what I think about you

There's something wrong with the voices inside my head
Not knowing if I should believe them
Not knowing what they said to you

If our world should crumble, tear apart at the seams
We could resurrect your God and make him explain our dreams
Still you'd never know the way I feel tonight
It's just the slightest change but something's not quite right

Somewhere within the time it takes to erase our minds
I've turned into something else and now I can't trust myself
A violent evolution, starting to shift my shape
The moon shines in the sky and your no longer safe