Jaded Entity

Cathedral

Here, gibbering alone, oh
The earth and heavens, they so tire me
In our life I've seen, I've no desire to be
This crumbled throne of worldly gain
Glory forgotten, just nothing remainsWe've come too far, we are so close
One soul inside, one forever weepingAs the vain morning dawns all life fades away
You can take me now, beyond the violet veil
And whatever flames the night in these deeds I've done
In fate's control, at last my time has comeWe've come too far, we are so close
One soul inside, one forever weepingDeath is death, the little host that squirms
Smell the dark, the coffin closed
And I so soft, ooh, so soft, no movement
And no breath, no ears, no nose, no eyesDeath is death, sepulchre
No sight, no sound, no cry
And always, always
Death is death, yeahDamp skin in graying sheets
Decaying, absorbing me
Bleached white ceiling above
Dehydrating visions of loveVitality slides back down the walls
Saturating the velvet floor
Numbness writhes in all I adore
Wasting here, can't see the doorWe've come too far, we are so close
One soul inside, one forever weeping[Incomprehensible]
