

He Ain't Never Done Me Nothin' But Good

The Isaacs

He ain't never done me nothin, done me nothin but good, nothin but good
Oh, he ain't never, done me nothin, done me nothin but good, nothin but good

Well, Job was a righteous man, the devil couldn't doubt it
He surely loved the savior, there was no doubt about it
Satan cursed his body from his feet to his head,
Then he told him all his children and his cattle were dead
And Job's wife said, "Why don't you curse your God and die?"
Well Job said, "Woman, you're speakin' like a foolish child!"

Oh, he ain't never, done me nothin, done me nothin but good, nothin but good
Oh, he ain't never, done me nothin, done me nothin but good, nothin but good

I gave my heart to Jesus and took him as my savior
He cast my loss to the chosen ones and started out for heaven
Sir, I was forsaken, my friends left one by one,
But the good Lord walked beside me, and never left me alone
He fed me when I was hungry, and cheered me when I was sad
And he has been the dearest friend this child has ever had

Oh, he ain't never, done me nothin, done me nothin but good, nothin but good
Oh, he ain't never, done me nothin, done me nothin but good, nothin but good

History tells of Polycarp, a martyr for the Gospel's sake
They built a fire around his feet and tied him to a stake
But the fire could not consume him, so they pierced him with a sword,
The blood ran down, put out the fire and still he praised The Lord
Now, all these years I've served him, he's done me nothin but good
Well, I won't repent, and I won't relent, just tell me what I should

Oh, he ain't never, done me nothin, done me nothin but good, nothin but good
Oh, he ain't never, done me nothin, done me nothin but good, nothin but good
