Newborn Mind

Napoleon

Where there is comfort there is pain
It's the greatest challenge that we face
If you're broken, you can be fixed
By searching for the life you know existsFather remind me that I need to be free Mother, I'm blinded by everything I have seen
By everything I've seenYou can wait for your ashes to scatter
Or believe in the loved ones that matter
It's easy to forget what you learnt
When you fight for the thrill to returnThe prince of darkness cradled me to sleep
He wrapped his arms around me
As I breathed in his misery
I was comatose when he told the story
He said 'son, this evil is yours to keep'
He said 'son, this evil is yours to keep'But I won't answer to his call this time
This is where I draw the line
I bear a newborn mind
I bear a newborn mindI won't answer to his call this time
He can't stop the fire inside
I bear a newborn mind
I bear a newborn mindYou can wait for your ashes to scatter
Or believe in the loved ones that matter
It's easy to forget what you learnt
When you fight for the thrill to returnThe prince of darkness cradled me to sleep
He wrapped his arms around me
As I breathed in his misery
I was comatose when he told the story
He said 'son, this evil is yours to keep'
He said 'son, this evil is yours to keep'Where there is comfort there is pain
It's the greatest challenge that we face
If you're broken, you can be fixed
By searching for the life you know existsWe are but a lonely speck of dust, with imagined self importance
Suspended in an enveloping cosmic dark
We must realise our insignificance and release religion and ignorance
To defeat our delusional existenceIt's in your hands to light the flame
Don't be afraid to change
It will be then we let go
Of our souls that were made of stone

We can't go on with our fate foretold
The only home we've ever known
Depends on us to paint it gold
