Barking at the Moon

Jenny Lewis

I have got so much to give, I swear I do
I may not have nine lives, this one feels brand new
Yes, I've lived a good one, I have tried to be true
There are some things I never realized till I met you

How the wind feels on my cheeks when I'm barking at the moonThere is no home like the one you've got

'Cause that home belongs to you

Woo, woo, here I come, woo, woo, back to you

There is no home like the one you've got

'Cause that home belongs to youWell, I was in trouble, bad, I was so confused

I may not see in color, babe, but I sure can feel blue

I have been a lot of things, they may not all be true

My experience was so mysterious till I met you

Now the sun may rise in the east but I'm barking at the moonThere is no home like the one you've got

'Cause that home belongs to you

Woo, woo, here I come, woo, woo, back to you

There is no home like the one you've got

'Cause that home belongs to youThere is no home like the one you've got

'Cause that home belongs to you

There is no home like the one you've got

'Cause that home belongs to you
