I Wouldn't Mind

Duncan Sheik

So you wrote me a letter
Which I thought was really kind
Don?t recall which song it was
But there was one you really like
And you asked me so innocently
Of my inspiration
Why I write the songs I sing
Reasons why I make them
Nothing here is what it seems
Risk the wreckage of your dreams
So that you are always shopping
Steal away the cash you're dropping
Listen to me when I say
Fantasies are built to fade
There you are, you?re always shopping
Don't even try, there is no stopping
Don?t misunderstand me
It always makes me smile
When I can serenade you
As you're rolling down the aisles
On this journey of your soul's desire
The paradise of goods
You?re doing just exactly
What I think you should
Nothing here is what it seems
Risk the wreckage of your dreams
So that you are always shopping
While you roll you're really rocking

Listen to me when I say
Fantasies are built to fade
There you are, you?re always wanting
You don?t have it's always haunting
Still one thing I have to say
My confession?s not complete
I?ve made it sound as if all this
Has nothing to do with me
There surely is not anything
Further from the truth

When I have pretty things to gain
And only useless things to loose
Wish there were another way
I must keep the wolves at bay
I hope that you don?t find it shocking
Rock and roll is built on shopping
If you?re searching for my soul
Come, check out my chains of gold
Grab your purse and let's go shopping
For lingerie and silky stockings
Let's go shopping together
So that we can find ourselves
So that we can buy ourselves
Let's go shopping together
We are always by ourselves
We are always by ourselves
Let's go shopping together
So that we can find ourselves
