Common Ground

Gameface

Wonderin' how to cross the river
On a cold and windy night
With the water ragin' higher
By the moon's full shining light
Suddenly a man stepped forward
And he looked at all around
He said, "We all must cross this river
We all stand on common ground"Though I was standin' among strangers
I did not know their names
I realized that they were with me
And our journey was the same
As he spoke out loud, I looked around me
I could see they knew it too
We would cross or die together
No one man could make it throughThere was shelter across the river
Across the water deep and black
As a storm moved in behind us,
There was no way to turn back
So I stepped right up beside him
I took one last look around
Right before my eyes I realized,
We all stand on common ground
We all stand on common ground
So many years have come and gone
Since we crossed that river wide
When I look back on that night
It still moves me so inside
This world today is like that river
Its water cold and black
We all must cross together,
For there is no turnin' back
On the mountain high or a city street,
It's the same old world below our feet
It's time to wake up, people, take a look around
We all stand on common ground
It's time for every woman and every man
We hold the future in our hands
Wake up and look around,
We all stand on common ground

We all stand on common ground
Common ground
Common ground.
