

Lady Of The Dancing Water

King Crimson

Grass in your hair, stretched like a lion in the sun
Restlessly turned, moistened your mouth with your tongue Pouring my wine, your eyes caged mine glowing Touching your face, my fingers strayed knowing
I called you lady of the dancing water Oh, lovely lady of the dancing water Blown autumn leaves shed to the fire where you laid me
Burn slow to ash just as my days now seem to be
I feel you still always your eyes glowing Remembered hours salt, earth and flowers flowing
Farewell my lady of the dancing water
