Two Promises

Sunny Day Real Estate

Long days caught in his room
Trapped in the gloom of the dying light
His heart pleads through the wounds that he bleeds
The wounds he never can closeWrong way mind in a haze never know what he could do
He thinks, "I gave her my heart, she tasted my soul
Now she's gone again"
He thinks, "I gave her my heart, she tasted my blood
Now she's gone again"'Long days alone with his shame
Fanning the flames of desire
His heart breaks as his memory plays
Images of her betrayalWrong way his mind in a rage never know what he could do
He thinks, "I gave her my heart, she tasted my soul
Now she's gone again"
He thinks, "I gave her my heart, she tasted my blood
Now she's gone again"Why did you leave me here? How could you lead me down here?
He can't decide where to go then two promises, one imperfect
Walls he's building keep on crumbling down
Walls are falling try to keep them soundLong days, he thinks the time will be soon
Pacing his room with his dark thoughts
His heart breaks at the road he must take
The road that will lead to the endWrong way he thinks it's right for release
He'll never know peace in his lifetime
He thinks, "I gave her my heart, she tasted my soul
Now she's gone again"
He thinks, "I gave her my heart, she tasted my blood
Now she's gone again"He can't decide where to go then
Two promises one imperfect
Walls he's building keep on crumbling down
Walls have fallen now there is no sound

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/