Polar Bear

The Charlatans

She knew she was able to fly
Because when she came down
She had dust on her hands from the sky
She said, "I touched the ground"
She felt so high, the dust made her cryShe knew she could fly like a bird
But when she said, "Please raise the roof higher"
Nobody heard, they never noticed a word
The light bulbs burn, her fingers will learnWhy should it feel like a crime?
If I want to be with you all the time
Why is it measured in hours?
You should make your own time
You're welcome in mineShe knew she was able to fly
Because when she came down
She had dust from her hands on the sky
She said, "I touched the ground"
Her fingers will learn, the light bulbs burn
