Salt Left Over

Trapdoor Social

A shot in the sky
You wouldn't chance it
Too much unknown
To give an answerAn honest mistake
You start to regret
A little to late
It's just beginningYou don't say
What you mean
Hold it back
I do not think that you'd have it any other wayYou don't say
What you mean
Save the rest but know
When the ocean's gone the salt's left overAs all the years passed by
Your mind grows out the dreams inside
Oh no you can't say why
You woke one day your purpose diedA blink in the stare
You keep your focus
Waited all year
It never showed upLeft it outside
An easy target
Worlds collide
And now they're upsetStrike up a torch
Now you see it
Turning around
Just want to forgetThey blow you apart
Because you let them
Slow to the draw
They have it in themBridgeWhere does the time get off to
Your brain gets stuck in the sand
Where does the shine get off to
When your eyes get caught in your hands
