

My Daddy's Dream

Kestin Howard

One early December morning,
He woke up from the night
He sat in bed and wondered
If what he'd seen was really right

And he woke her up and said,
"Honey, you won't believe what I'm about to say,
A baby's coming to us,
On your birthday"

She laughed it off but inside she knew
That this dream of his would really come true

My Daddy's dream came true in late October
It was half-past twelve and the life he knew was over
He promised he would raise that boy
'Til his dying day
And so it seems my Daddy's dream is living on today

Well that little boy was growing up
To the sound of a steel guitar
Hoping that one day
He'd be a country music star

One night he saw Alan Jackson
On the grand 'ole opera stage
He turned to him and said,
"Daddy, could I be up there someday?"

He laughed at first then said,
"Of course you can"
It was then that his other dream began

My Daddy's dream was finally insight
And he wanted to see his boy's name up in lights
He knew it was a long shot
But he'd help him on his way
And so it seems my Daddy's dream is going strong today

And as I stand here in front of you

I'm proud to say I am my Daddy's dream
It just goes to show that dreams come true
'Cause now I'm living out his other dream

My Daddy's dream came true in late October
It was half-past twelve and the life he knew was over
He promised he would raise that boy
Until his dying day
And so it seems my Daddy's dream is living on today
Yes, so it seems my Daddy's dream is living on today
