True Story

Ginny Owens

I am a gifted artist
I've learned to paint this canvas well
I work until I've finished
An ideal image of myself
But You know betterI am a storyteller
Quite brilliant, if I do say so
I tell them tales they want to hear
And they believe it's me they know
But You know betterYou see my imperfections
Still You say I'm a masterpiece
A marvelous reflection
The image of Yourself in meYou paint with strokes of grace
Undoing my disguise
You say beauty lies in the true storyThe world might think me foolish
If they could see beneath my mask
They might find my dreams laughable
Or be embarrassed by my past
But You know betterYou see my imperfections
Still You say I'm a masterpiece
A marvelous reflection
The image of Yourself in meYou paint with strokes of grace
Undoing my disguise
You say beauty lies in the true storyOf where I've been
And where You've brought me to
Of who I am
All because of YouAll because of You
All because of You
All because of YouYou see my imperfections
Still You say I'm a masterpiece
A marvelous reflection
The image of Yourself in meYou paint with strokes of grace
Undoing my disguise
You say beauty lies in the true storyYou see my imperfections
Still You say I'm a masterpiece
A marvelous reflection
The image of Yourself in meYou paint with strokes of grace
Undoing my disguise
You say beauty lies in the true story
