The One Piece Puzzle

Skyclad

Pick up the fragments and piece them together
Tell me, do you like what you've found?
Are your thoughts like the world spinning 'round?
Existence is pure pantomime
Why is life such a puzzle sometimes?Trapped in a world I no longer feel part of Each day is a thorn in my side
Though, I've carried my cross
Worn my heart on my sleeve
Still deep inside something has diedIf men have a sell-by-date, I've just reached mine
Now we've come to the end of the line
Why is life such a puzzle sometimes?Well, I just can't believe that it's happened again
Always knew that it would just a matter of when
A lie was the last straw on this camels back
And just like Lot's wife, I could never look back
So, maybe the reason I act so estranged
Is you still dream of him, it's you that has changedNo method to madness, no reason to rhyme
Now we've come to the end of the line
Why is life such a puzzle sometimes?Well, I just can't believe that it's happened again
Always knew that it would just a matter of when
A lie was the last straw on this camels back
And just like Lot's wife, I could never look back
So, maybe the reason I act so estranged
Is you still dream of him, it's you that has changedIf men have a sell-by-date, I've just reached mine
Now we've come to the end of the line
Why is life such a puzzle sometimes?
Why is life such a puzzle sometimes?
