Concrete Timeline

Choke

setting off, the streets unwind this concrete timeline clears my mind and sight trading off the routine i walk for open roads and unforeseen challengeand the seam will come undonesettle in at highway speed i'd rather face unknows behind the wheel combing out the tangled thoughts a realease is only natural it holds me upcomb out tangled thoughts we store trace out what's to come bring it onlost all sense of time (will it rewind the time for us)
a hundred miles away
keeping track of days through scenery passing me by living comfortably (the scenery marks the time for us) the warmth of a cold floor
yet somehow it still feels like homecount down where I've been escape rewards me now translate what I've seen rewards banish doubtsI'm living well these days feel comfort in this rolling home a feeling like I've never know exists keep pushing on I'll hold these days forever
