Still Pretending

Tift Merritt

I hear you comin' up the driveway
I tie a ribbon in my hair look who's come to see me
Funny, you always end up hereBut it's still pretending
And it's still wrong
And I still can't tell my heart
Why I'm still aloneWell I guess I'm supposed to lock you out
Well I guess I'm supposed to play it tough
But I see, how you look at me
Baby, it always is enoughBut it's still pretending
And it's still wrong
And I still can't tell my heart
Why I'm still aloneBarefoot in the kitchen laughin'
Till you leave when I'll be cryin'
Inside the door I close behind you
Wishin' you would stayBut we're still pretending
And we're still wrong
And I still can't tell my heart
Why I'm still aloneOh tell me why I'm still alone?
Oh why I'm still alone?
