

Watermill

Viceroy

Where the snow melts and the shadows bend
Weeping willows dance and the sea swells
At the river's end calling in the trance And our eyes meet while the watermill
Turns the stubborn stream
And my life breaks on the waterwheel
Into a dream When the light fades and the wind is still Hear the cricket's rhyme and the cascades
Of the river spill falling out of time And our eyes meet while the watermill
Turns the stubborn stream
And my life breaks on the waterwheel
Into a dream So the earth turns like a paddlewheel
Secret still in spin and the sun burns
On a golden field where you've always been And our eyes meet while the watermill
Turns the stubborn stream
And my life breaks on the waterwheel
Into a dream
