

I'll Pray Again

Caleb Garraway & Katie Garraway

It was late Sunday night, the car door closed softly, footsteps came up the stairs. A discouraged young pastor met his wife at the entrance, his face lined with a thousand cares. "We've been here two years and nothing's changed; these people won't listen at all. I'm outbid answers and I'm feeling small." But as he read in the Bible page after page, his heart was convinced to stay in the race. He knelt by his desk, they pray on the floor; "Though I don't understand what it's for, I'll trust one day more..."

CHORUS:

I'll pray again, I'll kneel again, I'll knock on the door, asking for more, strength for the fight, peace in the night.
Trusting by faith the answer He'll send. I'll pray again.

At quarter past two in the morning, a mother wakes up again. Her youngest daughter has a special condition, they say that she won't pass ten. The worry's so great, and nothing's changed, does God understand us at all? We're out of answers and we're feeling small. But as they read in the Bible page after page, the comfort came in along with grace. Here hand held her daughter as they knelt on the floor. "Though we don't understand what it's for, we'll trust one day more..."

CHORUS:

WE'LL pray again, WE'LL kneel again WE'LL knock on the door...

When the darkness surrounds you, and God seems so silent, your backs against the wall, you may be tempted to doubt God's goodness, it seems like He won't hear your call. The guess take shape and cloud your mind; "Is God in control after all? My life's out of balance and I'm going to fall" But if you'll read in the Bible page after page, you'll see that He's there, and he'll not forsake. Surrender your life is all you must do; you'll begin to see God's point of view. He's there to change you...

CHORUS:

GO pray again, GO kneel again, GO knock on the door...

Lyrics Submitted by L.J.B.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>