Mark My Words

Hatebreed

I was so blind I couldn't see the truth I was unable to see How my life was being usedTo be something so minuscule Everything I thought was so definite I thought was so real was thrown away And will be remembered among un-paralleling hatredConsider my suffering Through all your pain Remember my face I'm digging your graveSince when was so sacred Turning into something so wrong Something so important to me Cheapened and exploitedI won't be that way I can't, I can't be that way again I can't, I won't, I will never let itConsider my suffering Through all your pain Remember my face I'm digging your fucking graveFor the rest of your fucking life You will mark, mark my words
