

Every Flashlight May Blind You

Dylan Mondegreen

On the mountains
in the valleys
they're all looking for a love
At the harbours
at the stations
they're all waiting for a love As plain as it sounds I only find it
right here at home
where my family is Honestly, I believe
there is nothing out there better for me
If bewildered
out of focus
when trying to keep sharp
every flashlight
may blind you
if triggered in the dark It's a false sentiment prompted by someone who's never heard a lament or seen a happy end
But I know how it feels to take hold of something palpable and real like the fresh fruit of autumn like the green grass in spring or like the snow
that always seem to come just when you thought that winter was finally gone As plain as it sounds
I have all I need now
right here at home
Honestly, I believe
there is nothing out there better for me
