

Time to Melt

Lard

Lay me down on a griddle of sweat
Lay me down, it's been a long day
Time to unwind, time to relax
Let the tension flow awayMy body's weary and full of holesHollow jets in my fingers and my toes
Too tired to masturbate
No sound in the dark as I float in outer space
Touch down on an astroturf plainPeewee golf balls roll by my faceGolf tees hammered through my feet and my hands
Nailed as an example againTied down with fishing lineLilliputian sacrificeFireworks go off, I hear the cheers
Smell the hot dogs
Smell the mustard and the beerSharp needles pierce my flesh
Hypodermics press down and inject
20 gallons of Canfield's diet Fudge Soda
Effervescent bubbling chocolate bloodMicron by micron my flesh starts to melt
All that's left is brain and bones
Hot beams on the cool wet sand
Bury me- with the help of the wind and the wavesSubmerged in the cool soilEarthworms crawl in and crawl out
Further down is the underground aquifer cave
The bats and blindfish
Are all my friendsSoil hardens and it starts to crack
The lake is dry as desert air
Sidewinders crawl through my eye socketsTheir soft white underbelly feels like loveBlowing tumbleweeds stick to my ribs
Night falls, the sky is red
Captain Beefheart flies up on gargoyle wings
Talons reach down to take me back againReborn on a bed of white
Incubator filters out the light
A thousand breasts massage my face
But Life is calling to take me away
(Open up, we have a warrant)
Learn to walk another dayLearn to walk another day
Ohm, ohm, ohm, ohm, etc
