

Down From The Rafters

Hundred Waters

I woke free
From something clutching me
Pulled its awful, leaden, cold, clammy body
Out away from me And the light that came out, came out
Came out
But to survive, how can I? I've wandered through water
Since the morning I heard you
You were half alive, but that mud inside
Is the same mud that makes me love you
Only after after all the fog has long dissolved
Take a little pill, drown it out in laughter
Take a little pill, maybe think about it after Cause every morning's like a climb from the rafters
Take a little pill, drown it out in laughter
Take a little pill, maybe think about it after Think about it after Delude
Dementia
Make it feel
Like I never met ya
Delude
Dementia
To make it feel
Like I never met ya
