Rhyme Without Reason

'One and Only' Craig Baceda

You take it off the top of the plate
And don't care who you're fooling
I can feel the weight you carry
Don't hate them... Don't hate them.

This is the rule that you should know
It's seldom said, but sometimes shown
This is the rule from up above
Throw out the rules - bring in the love

Stop this selfishness.

Where are you now
Now that you're alone in the dark?
Change is changing
Not the same, never again
Spirit darkens
When you give away your soul
Feel the future, if you can fill in the holes
Change

There you go again,
Hands caught in the cookie jar
Seems like you think
Everybody's a fool but you
Spirit darkens
When you give away your soul
Feel the future, if you can fill in the holes

Drop down the baggage, take a walk on the lighter side
Take a look into the mirror. Ask yourself,

What do you see? What do you care?
What do you show but your selfishness
What will you be when we're not there?
What will you show but your selfishness
