

Arcana

Edgard Varèse

Here where the dream of Eden waits
The rivers running easy
In their valleys they are slumbering There the mysteries reveal by the clearness I can feel
And an island in the stream appears before my eyes
I am hunting lonesome traces in the sand
And someone speaks my name from far away The ruins of yesterday will disappear
I will reach for the sources of light
As we are all finding our new hemisphere
I am turning, just yearning to feel
Feel your dreams, don't toss them away Ancient myth, arcana, Elysian seas of time
The stones of wisdom shine again, the moonlight hides the rhyme
In long gone days of yore, one thousand years before
The odyssey was in our dreams, arcana, we explore Here I can feel the inner flame, could forget what we became
And the false mirages can't deceive, deceive me no more
I am facing countless shadows in despair
But I won't follow them into the gloomy calm aside of light Ancient myth, arcana, Elysian seas of time
The stones of wisdom shine again, the moonlight hides the rhyme
In long gone days of yore, one thousand years before
The odyssey was in our dreams, arcana, we explore Thorns of roses that I feel, secrecy under the seal
Hear the tolling of the bell, bring me under your spell
See the mysteries in twilight
They're turning away from darkness to light
(Into infinity) Here where the dreams of Eden's near
Leaving to a distant sphere
To elysian seas of time we ride
I am longing for infinity, arcana, arcana Tonight this journey seals my fate
Far beyond the open gate
To the secret places never seen before
For this final odyssey into arcana, arcana Here where the dreams of Eden's near
Leaving to a distant sphere
To elysian seas of time, we ride
I am longing for infinity, arcana, arcana Tonight this journey seals my fate
Far beyond the open gate
To the secret places never seen before
For this final odyssey into arcana, arcana
