

You to Believe In

Paradise Fears

something like a crisis a quarter life gone by,
and I'm still obsessed with purpose, just getting wasted, wasting time, there's something like a message in this October sky, you held my hand through all the darkness, picked me up when times were hardest, so I may be stuck in neutral, wondering where to hedge my bets, but when that same sky is falling, and nothing else is making sense, I've got you to believe in,
Yeah I've got you to believe in,
I've got you to believe in, some people have their faith,
I don't what to think,
cause if there's something guiding us, then why am I still drawing blanks?
I still dream of running,
but I can't fill up my tank, You grabbed my hand and pulled me up, you poured my soul into a cup, until it runneth over until it runneth over I've got you to believe in,
Yeah I've got you to believe in,
when it feels like i'm nothing,
you're there and god, well at least that's something,
I've got you to believe in, I don't believe in politics, I don't pray to celebrities,
Or stand with generations finding faith in TV screens,
And screaming,
"All that's good is gone, all we used to love is dead, Now our only heroes are the voices in our heads," they're screaming,
"All that's good is gone, all we used to love is dead, Now our only heroes are the voices in our heads,"
"All that's good is gone, all we used to love is dead, Now our heroes are the voices in our heads," 4, 3, 2, I don't know who I am, but I know I've got you to believe in,
Yeah I've got you to believe in,
when it feels like i'm nothing,
you're there and god, well at least that's something,
I've got you to believe in,
I've got you to believe in,
I've got you to believe in,
