Half

Aya Korem

She spent half of her life a lookin for a better half to make her whole
Now she spends all her nights waitin' for a man who won't come home
She had half a mind to leave him she had half a mind to stay
She had half a tank in her Pontiac when she made her get away
She spent half that night drivin' to her sister's in Santa Cruz
She had half her life to think about and everything to loose
She took half a week to find the strength to finally make the call Yeah she's better off takin' half than when she had it all
She said I'll take half of everything you own
I've been takin' half all along
Half of you love and half of you time
She can have the other half that once was mine
Half of their money half of their home aint worth half the nights spent alone
Well she was cryin' but she got the last laugh
She said honey, honey I'll take half
They met half way up the courthouse steps with their lawyers by their sides
They spent half that day dividin' up the past ten years of their lives
The judge said it ain't hard to figure out if you'll just do the math
Yeah Y'all started off with everything now you're endin' up with half
She said I'll take half of everything you own
I've been takin' half all along

Half of you love and half of you time
She can have the other half that once was mine
Half of their money half of their home
aint worth half the nights spent alone
Well she was cryin' but she got the last laugh
She said honey, honey I'll take half
She gave her whole heart to him when she said I do Yeah her whole world came crashin' down after what he put her through All her whole life revolved around the promises he made
All she had to gain ain't worth half the price she paid
She said I'll take half of everything you own
I've been takin' half all along
Half of you love and half of you time
She can have the other half that once was mine
Half of their money half of their home
aint worth half the nights spent alone
Well she was cryin' but she got the last laugh

She said honey, honey I'll take half
Well she was cryin' but she got the last laugh
She said honey, honey I'll take half

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/