Stranger

Endless Blue

Iâ€™m fading, so cold out no coat on, donâ€™t notice the rain Itâ€™s the right time, you were with me how come I can only feel pain?
I know I felt it, for a moment
Sun was shining, burning too bright
Sky abandoned, no real reason
Down on my knees I succumb to the night

But the stranger in the mirror
I donâ€™t know her, I fear her
I cry for her every night
When I see her with you
Broken shards of glass in my fingers
Bleed in protest, in sadness
I suffer not knowing the way
To hate her, and I do

On the outside sounds of laughter tears are falling yet nobody sees Broken sunset, masked in grey fog
Vindictive winds swallow my pleas
Iâ€™m alone now, light my candles
In the bathtub I sit holding my knees
Now Iâ€™m sorry in this moment destined to face lifeâ€™s misery

But the stranger in the mirror
I donâ€™t know her, I fear her
I cry for her every night
When I see her with you
Broken shards of glass in my fingers
Bleed in protest, in sadness
I suffer not knowing the way
To hate her, and I do
