

Why Are You So Boring?

Desperate Journalist

I hope you don't mean to, you just want to be seen to

Have a view at all

But Jesus set me free from your dumb mentality

When you make yourself look small

Please will you forgive me, I have only lived these

Abstracts in your decrees

You touch me on the arm, lecture me on Animal Farm

Well, if only I could read

Such a long way, oh

With so little to say

Oh, my darling, why are you so boring?

Oh, my darling, why are you so boring?

Flicking back your hair, you vociferously blare

Your schoolboy rights and wrongs

Well, I could break your face, emancipate the human race

Can one evening last so long?

Maybe at eighteen you had a brilliant breakthrough

Over several beers

But now I've done my time, waiting in the fucking line

Listening to you sneer

Such a long way, oh

With so little to say

Oh, my darling, why are you so boring?

Oh, my darling, why are you so boring?

Oh, my darling, why are you so boring?

Oh, my darling, why are you so boring?
