Still Myself

Melissa Manchester

I thought i'd live by your side, and die in your arms, we were close as the wind to the rain, I thought I'd take on your dreams, and bathe in your light, but this moment is all that remains, and I know I'll make something from nothing, but the first steps the hardest to take, so I will still myself, conquer my fears, and I will still myself, cushion the fall, so I will still myself, so deep in the silence till I recall, I'm still myself afterall, Though I know that I'll never, walk in these shoes, and your footprints have washed in the sand, no I can't stay forever, waiting by the shore, by my life feels like some foreign land, sometimes we all feel like strangers, just tryng to find a way home, (chorus) in the whisper of memories, in my heart you are with me, and the part of the journey, is having the faith to go on, (chorus)
