

Sunnyday

Light Beam Rider

little baby in her right arm she's you're best friend, shares a beat with your heart but you'll leave her, and she didn't think she'd be left alone, she should have known betteryou should have know by now,
that you can savor what you can taste, but you cleaned your plate like a glutton who swallowed his own touguebut i wanted to be there with you, but you've gone to meet your father, and the beliefs that you follow i hope there true and when you get there, will you see stairs covered in gold, or were theselies that you were told
are we strays?
have we lost our way?
because i'm growing older
and nothings feeling safe are we strays, is it safe for us to go?i'm not scared the pages are wearing thin from this book i've read, has got me tied in knots with themes and plots from other peoples lives.
but i'm not them, their not me life is a gift horse check its teethdon't end your life just get through the night oh no stick a knife into me now i can never touch you but i still can smell your perfume where we sleep wish i was your clothes, draped tight around your bonesholding you like a rope are we strays?
have we lost our way?
because i'm growing older
and nothings feeling safe
are we strays, is it safe for us to go? i love you, i hate you i can't think at all i love you, i hate you i can't let you go.

Lyrics provided by <https://damlyrics.com/>