Hillbound

Sleeper

things have been alright up here on the surface but now i must dive down, before you waste my time we leave ourselves behind in those we set aside right now you may not mind, but i think you will in timewe are all bound somewhere, and im bound nowhere that you are but maybe someday
i will learn to open up my armssoon ill be headed for the hills while everyone is at the mills this is to say goodbye, and to tell you why though ill be gone before this reaches you sprawled out in the open fields i always knew the sun would heal
i heard them call,
and i knew i had to go before you held me downit couldnt rain enough to wash you from my skin so now ill do the best that i can to start over again time keeps pressing on, wont be long before im gone somewhere up in the hills where everything still feelswe are all bound somewhere, and im bound nowhere that you are
but maybe someday
i will learn to open up my armssoon ill be headed for the hills
while everyone is at the mills this is to tell you why, and to say goodbye though ill be gone before this reaches you
sprawled out in the open fields
i always knew the sun would heal
i heard them call,
and i knew i had to leave before you held me down

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/