London Skies

Demeter

Paint a picture clear cut and pale on a cold winter's day
Shapes and cool light wander the streets like an army of strays
On a cold winters dayWill you let me romanticize
The beauty in our London skies
You know the sunlight always shines
Behind the clouds of London skiesPatient moments chill to the bone under infinite grays
Vision hindered mist settling low like a ghostly ballet
On a cold winter's dayWill you let me romanticize
The beauty in our London skies
You know the sunlight always shines
Behind the clouds of London skiesNothing is certain except everything you know can change
You worship the sun but now can you fall for the rainWill you let me romanticize
This beauty in our London skies
You know the sunlight always shines
Behind the clouds of London skies
