try and define the energy it takes to write these lines that i find useless all the time everyday i try not to stay awake but instead asleep a safety net i keep get up and over don't cave in get off and under tell me again capsized leave those in beweens for someone else sure as a headache comes and goes so will you dont cave in down and into every piece of all of you its more of a thought i think than anything everyday i try not to say your name but end up failing the worst of ways such a beautiful thing to waste and just as easy to replace tell me again and this time ill be sure to listen
