

Anybody's Girl

Hank Thompson & The Brazos Valley Boys

ANYBODY'S GIRL

Writers Hank Thompson, Billy Gray

Where there's dim lights and there's liqueur, they'll find you each night

    The jukebox will be playing your favorite song tonight

    You're the loneliest fool that's living in your make believe world

        You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

        Though you chose the life that lead you to sorrow and shame

        Each shoulder that you cry on, you swear that I'm to blame

    You gave up the one that loved you to live in your sorted world

        You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

        You can't say I didn't love you as you're crying in your beer

        You drink to every heartache and wish that I was near

    With each drink you passion surges and start your head to whirl

        You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

        I don't understand your feelings but emotions are strange things

    Why you gave up the life your leading and gave up your wedding ring

        You flaunt your charms and beauty and toss your pretty curls

        You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

        You're a honky tonk sweetheart and anybody's girl

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlrics.com/>