Sinking Stone

Alison Krauss & Union Station

I called you today
Wanting a change
I never meant to hurt anyone
Never meant for you to pull out your guns
But feelings won't stay
In this meager parade
You're beating to a different drum
In this lack of all the luster we've becomeSave your breath
You know we've both
Tried our best
But it's leavingThis might as well be done
I'm falling with the sun
When the hours getting sour won't save with time
I'm waving off the one
Who wouldn't let me run
Though we tried, it's a lie I can't keep dragging on I'm untying this sinking stoneDon't sit on the fence
Living past tense
Holding on to wishes and words
Folding out a picture we blur
'Cause here in the end
I'm losing a friend
Fighting back a tear when it burns
Dividing up the pieces that we wereSave your breath
You know we've both
Tried our best
But it's leavingThis might as well be done
I'm falling with the sun
When the hours getting sour won't save with time
I'm waving off the one
Who wouldn't let me run
Though we tried, it's a lie I can't keep dragging on I'm untying this sinking stoneI can't say you're all alone
I'm accepting what I own
Here lies a blanket and not a bandageI'm unable to restrain
When the wake that we became
Is drawing me underThis might as well be done
I'm falling with the sun
When the hours getting sour won't save with time

I'm waving off the one
Who wouldn't let me run
Though we tried, it's a lie I can't keep dragging onThis might as well be done
I'm falling with the sun
When the hours getting sour won't save with time
I'm waving off the one
Who wouldn't let me run
Though we tried, it's a lie I can't keep dragging on
I'm untying this sinking stone

Songwriters
LISTER, JEREMY BRANUMPublished by Lyrics Â© Warner/Chappell Music, Inc.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/