Last Day

D At Sea

When our love fails and the lust is dead
I'll send along the tales of years left unheard
Ages torn out of young hearts that died
Withered mights worn out, our letters... your eye

Who would you call? What would you say?
What would you do if today were your last day?
Who would you call? What would you say?
What would you do if today were your last day?

When my lungs fail and my hope is dead
My eyes still torn of fables of years mislead
Starlight burned out to many nights I've cried
Withered bodies worn out, our hearts fucked by lies

Who would you call? What would you say?
What would you do if today were your last day?
Who would you call? What would you say?
What would you do if today were your last day?

Stars shine, we're running out of time
Open your eyes, there's now answers in the sky
Don't live your life in black and white
Don't waste a day, you'll never waste away
Before you die, live your life

Who would you call? What would you say?
What would you do if today were your last day?
Who would you call? What would you say?
What would you do if today were your last day?

Who would you call? What would you say?
What would you do if today were your last day?
Who would you call? What would you say?
What would you do if today were your last day?
