

Burning Tree

Royal Thunder

A penny for the thoughts that jingle in your head
A quiet man that holds a raging war within
Less than pleased he was a hedge between his heart
And everything that tried to help him from the start
You don't have to hold that burning tree anymore
You held on so long and now it's burning me
To hold that burning tree let it go
I'll be holding on until they bury me
I see a woman shaking on the ground
Her knees are to get chest i hear her crying out
We tried to stop her years still further down
She goes her greatest fear to live his live alone
I see the light it's up ahead and coming for me
I call your name you're on the way and looking for me
Just pull yourself together temporary strife
Where is it now that ball and chain that dragged you down?
What can we do what have you done?
No penny for your thoughts no jingle in your head
A quiet man no longer waging war within
Less than pleased there was a hedge between
His heart and everyonw that tried to help him from the star
You don't have to hold
Turning off a key into another world
Your body float past my eyes
I'll never see your face again
I think i hear that jingle in your head
A penny for every time
Those coins
A mountain by side

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>