

Destined for Glory

HammerFall

Once upon a time in a forlorn land,
A man on a mission was left at fates hand
In his eyes you could see the whites turn red
Surrounded by evil, abandoned for deadBorn on the run by the sign of the sun
A mail-clad warrior, the chosen one
His name's been cursed, he is bound to fail
A wandering spirit with the will to prevailBy the sign of the moon,
He swore the oath to fight aloneFight with your heart, and you're Destined For
Glory

But fight without honor, and you're destined to FallHe still can recall his father's words
"Don't loose your faith, let your voice be heard"
Echoes from the past will lead him on
By these words of honor, shine like the sunBy the sign of the moon
He swore the oath to fight aloneFight with your heart, and you're Destined For
Glory

But fight without honor, and you're destined to
Fall
Fight with your heart, and you're Destined For
Glory

But fight without soul and you will loose it allThe prophecies spoke of a wandering man
Skilled with steel, black as the nightNormally veiled from the mortal eyes
His hammer arose like a magic force
With a gaze that turned everything into stone
The warrior spoke, "I am the one"Fight with your heart, and you're Destined For
Glory

But fight without honor, and you're destined to
Fall
Fight with your heart, and you're Destined For
Glory
But fight without soul and you will loose it allFight with your heart, and you're Destined For
Glory

But fight without honor, and you're destined to
Fall
Fight with your heart, and you're Destined For Glory
But fight without soul and you will loose it all

Songwriters

CANS, JOACIM ANDERS/DRONJAK, OSCAR FREDRICKPublished by

Lyrics © Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnyrics.com/>