Worth Dying For

Rise Against

Set me off like dynamite
Strapped tight around my waist
We are the ones in competition
But claim this ain't no race
Let's go
Take a breath and explode like bullets
Tearing through the wind
Cut me up with a razor blade
Then try to separate the skin
Now when the white flames are burning flags
We found a world worth dying for, yeah
We've been battered so hard that
We don't feel anymore
Take me from this world
Save me, what if we all die young
So take me from this world
Save me, what if we all die young
Send me off on the morning breeze
So far away from here
Fill your eyes in the strains of thought
Outside the warm embracing air
I'm moving slow like a glacier melting
Watch me dissipate
I switched to love in an empty world
But all I found was hate
Now when the white flames are burning flags
We found a world worth dying for, yeah
We've been battered so hard that
We don't feel anymore
Take me from this world
Save me, what if we all die young
So take me from this world
Save me, what if we all die young
Don't ask me why, 'cause I don't know
Don't ask me how, I'm gonna solve this on my own
Don't ask me why, 'cause I don't know
These things I'll never face, scratch out the warning race
The wreckage of a job well done
I saw a place I'd never seen before, yeah

And that morning I refused
To close my eyes anymore
So take me from this world
Save me, what if we all die young
So take me from this world
Save me, what if we all die young
So take me, so take me
